In today's day-and-age, it seems like just about everyone is a DJ or music producer. It's not exactly easy to separate yourself from the rest of the pack, but djseanEboy has managed to do it, seemingly, without struggle. If you're on the east coast of the US, you probably already know his name. Now, it's time for the rest of the world to get ready.

If you're trying to persuade a friend to fall in love with techno, take them to see djseanEboy. Radiating a kind of pure electricity for the music, it's hard not to get pulled in like a magnet, yourself. Whether it be on CDJs or vinyl, he knows how to mold the crowd, shaping the journey like a kind of aural sculptor. His musical versatility provides a hook to reel in even the most stubborn club-goer, while his sets feature a common theme of emanating deep, pitch-black palpitations with acid melodies intertwined. Something of a tastemaker, he seamlessly selects tracks from the early 2000's, to unreleased modern gems, constructing a unique soundscape that morphs each time he steps up to the booth.

Born and raised in Boston, he was always drawn to DJing and electronic music. Now with years of experience behind him, he's currently living in the Carolinas, where he owns and operates Subtek Music: a promotional group based in the area with the goal to inspire life, love, and self-expression. The passionate group puts on monumental productions featuring some of the most illustrious artists in the world, hosted in Washington DC and Miami. In 2019, they'll expand to New York City and techno capital, Detroit, furthering the Subtek brand to become a household name.

As an artist, he's played at some of the most well-known events in the country, such as Miami Music Week, and he's only just getting started. Having shared the stage with a catalog of electronic heavyweights like Ellen Allien, Marco Baily, Tom Hades, De La Swing, Huxley, Helena Huff, D-Unity, Barbuto, Agent Orange, Peter Bailey, and more, it's clear he knows what he's doing in the techno world. His productions speak to that.

With unforgettable releases on some of the most esteemed labels in the genre, such as Funk'n Deep, Renesanz, Frequenza, and Descend Records no explanation is needed to justify his success. His passionate, artistic formulation combined with his melodic proficiency has resulted in timeless tracks that will saturate any dancefloor. If you look around, you'll probably see one of the most diverse crowds out there, thanks to his undeniable notoriety and ability to send shivers up the spines of all in attendance with sonic delights. You'll find yourself submerged in the abyssal darkness of his tunes, yet smiles aren't uncommon, for the mood is anything but dim. Behind the decks, you'll probably see djseanEboy smiling back, pumping the crowd up, for he's doing what he loves: shedding light, love, and happiness onto the world through the power of music.
